Caring for Your Physical and Mental Health

New Yorkers affected by Hurricane Sandy are coping with many challenges as they work to restore order to their homes and lives. The Health Department urges residents to make sure they look after their physical and mental well-being.

What You Should Know

It's important to take care of your health. It will allow you to take better care of your family and loved ones as you recover from Hurricane Sandy.

What You Should Do

- Stay warm. If you don't have heat in your home, the City's Restoration Centers can help you find a warm place to stay. The City has also opened Warming Centers for those seeking shorter-term relief.
- Clean and repair your home safely. Wear an N95 dust mask, waterproof gloves and boots.
- Take your medication as prescribed and keep doctor's appointments. If you don't have a regular doctor, get one through your health plan, or call 311 to find out what insurance is available for you and your family.
- Get a flu shot. See your doctor, call 311 or visit nyc.gov/flu.
- Recognize stress. Traumatic events like Hurricane Sandy can feel overwhelming. Most people will feel some stress – but there is no right or wrong way to react. Everyone feels stress in his or her own way and at different times.
- Be patient with yourself and others. If symptoms of stress persist, or if they get worse or interfere with your daily functioning, consider professional help.

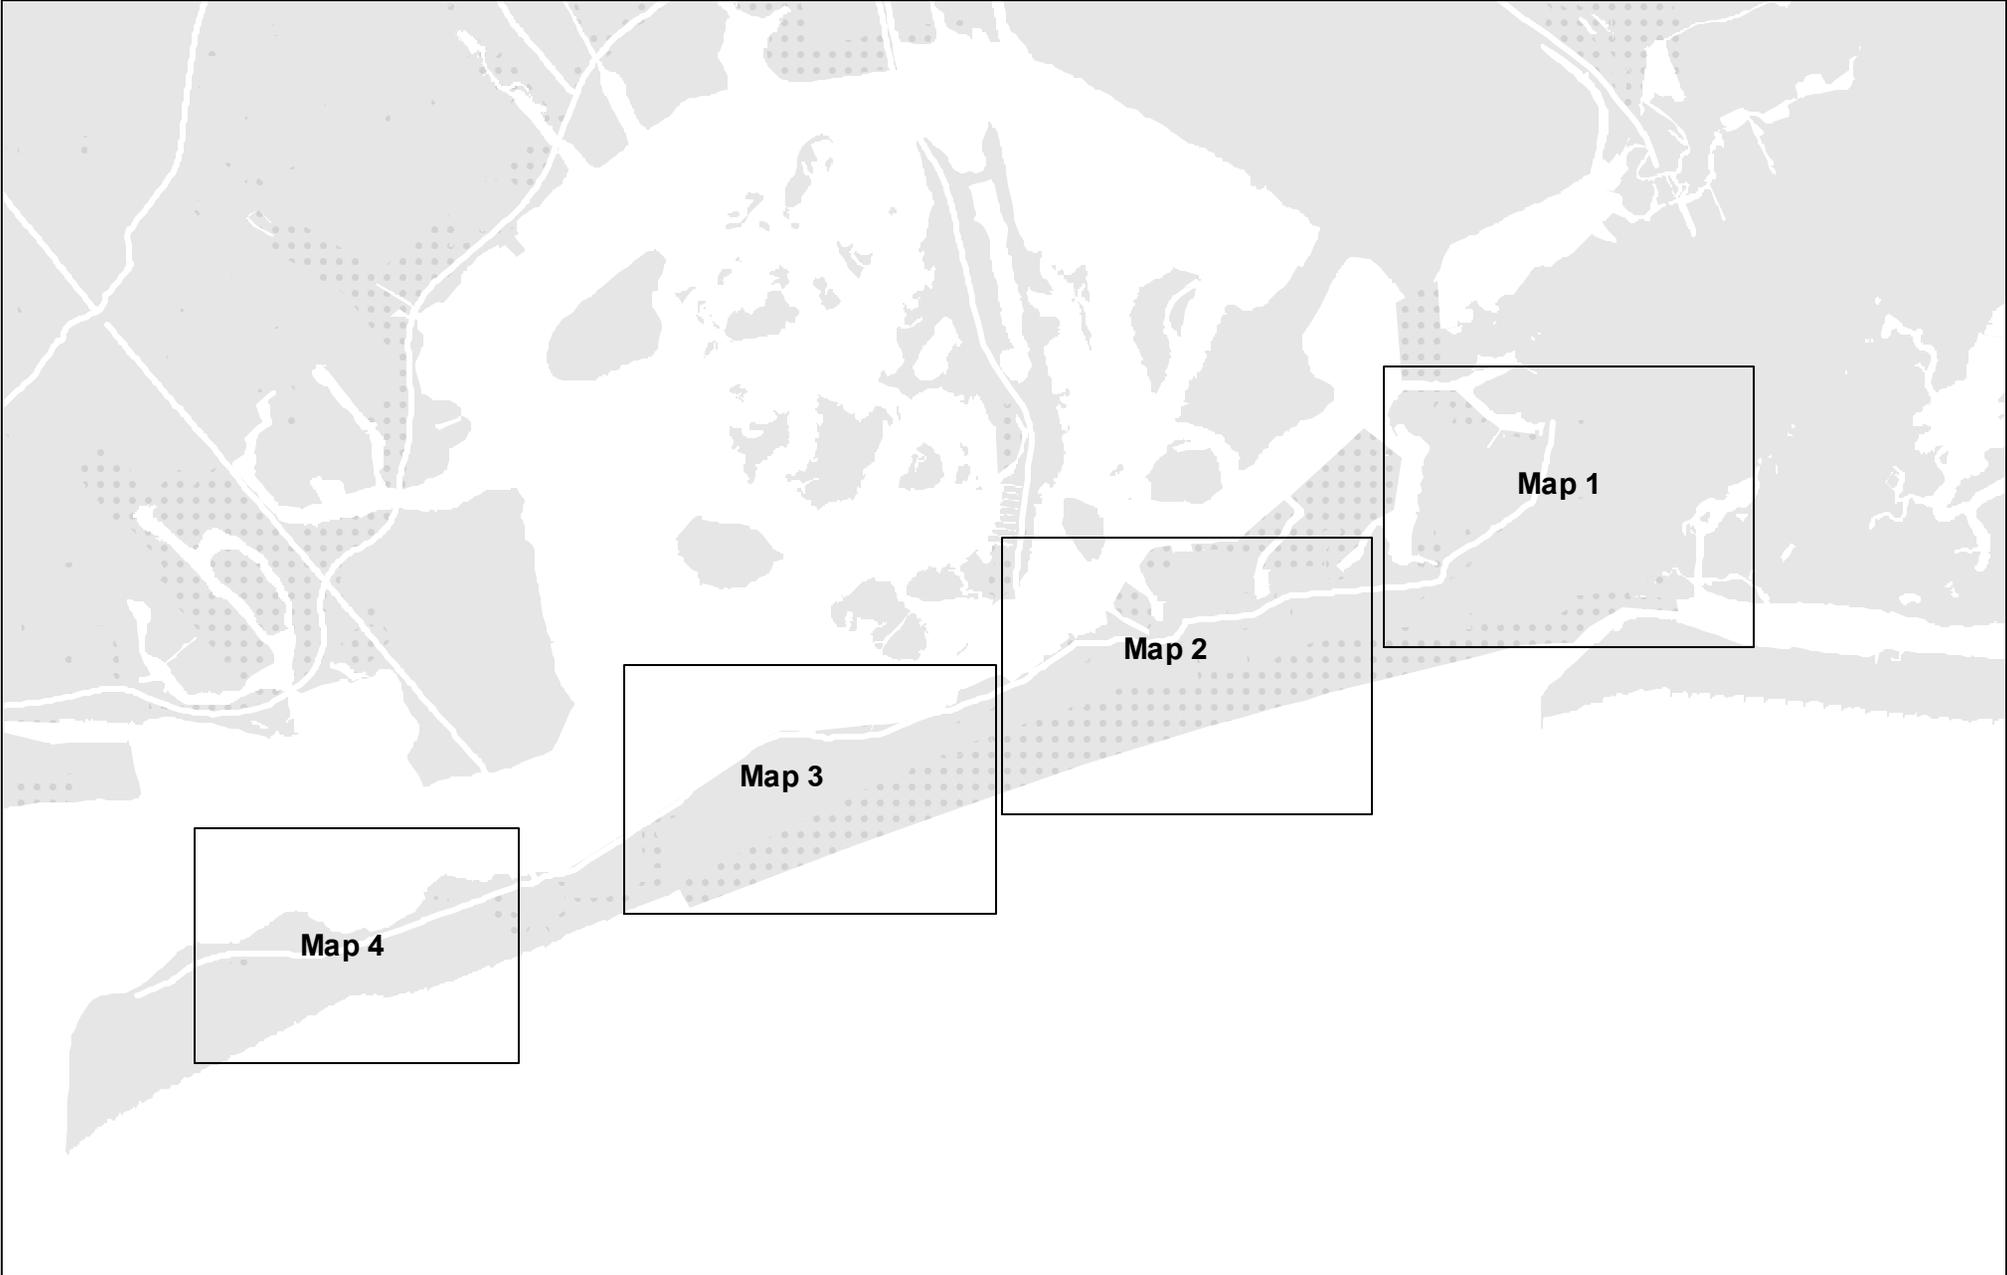

Resources

- For a list of health care providers and pharmacies that have reopened in the Rockaways and Coney Island, visit nyc.gov/health.
- If you feel overwhelmed or are concerned about yourself or someone else, you can find help by calling 800-LIFENET (800-543-3638). LIFENET is a free, confidential helpline for New York City residents, available 24 hours/7 days a week, with trained staff ready to take your calls in a variety of languages.

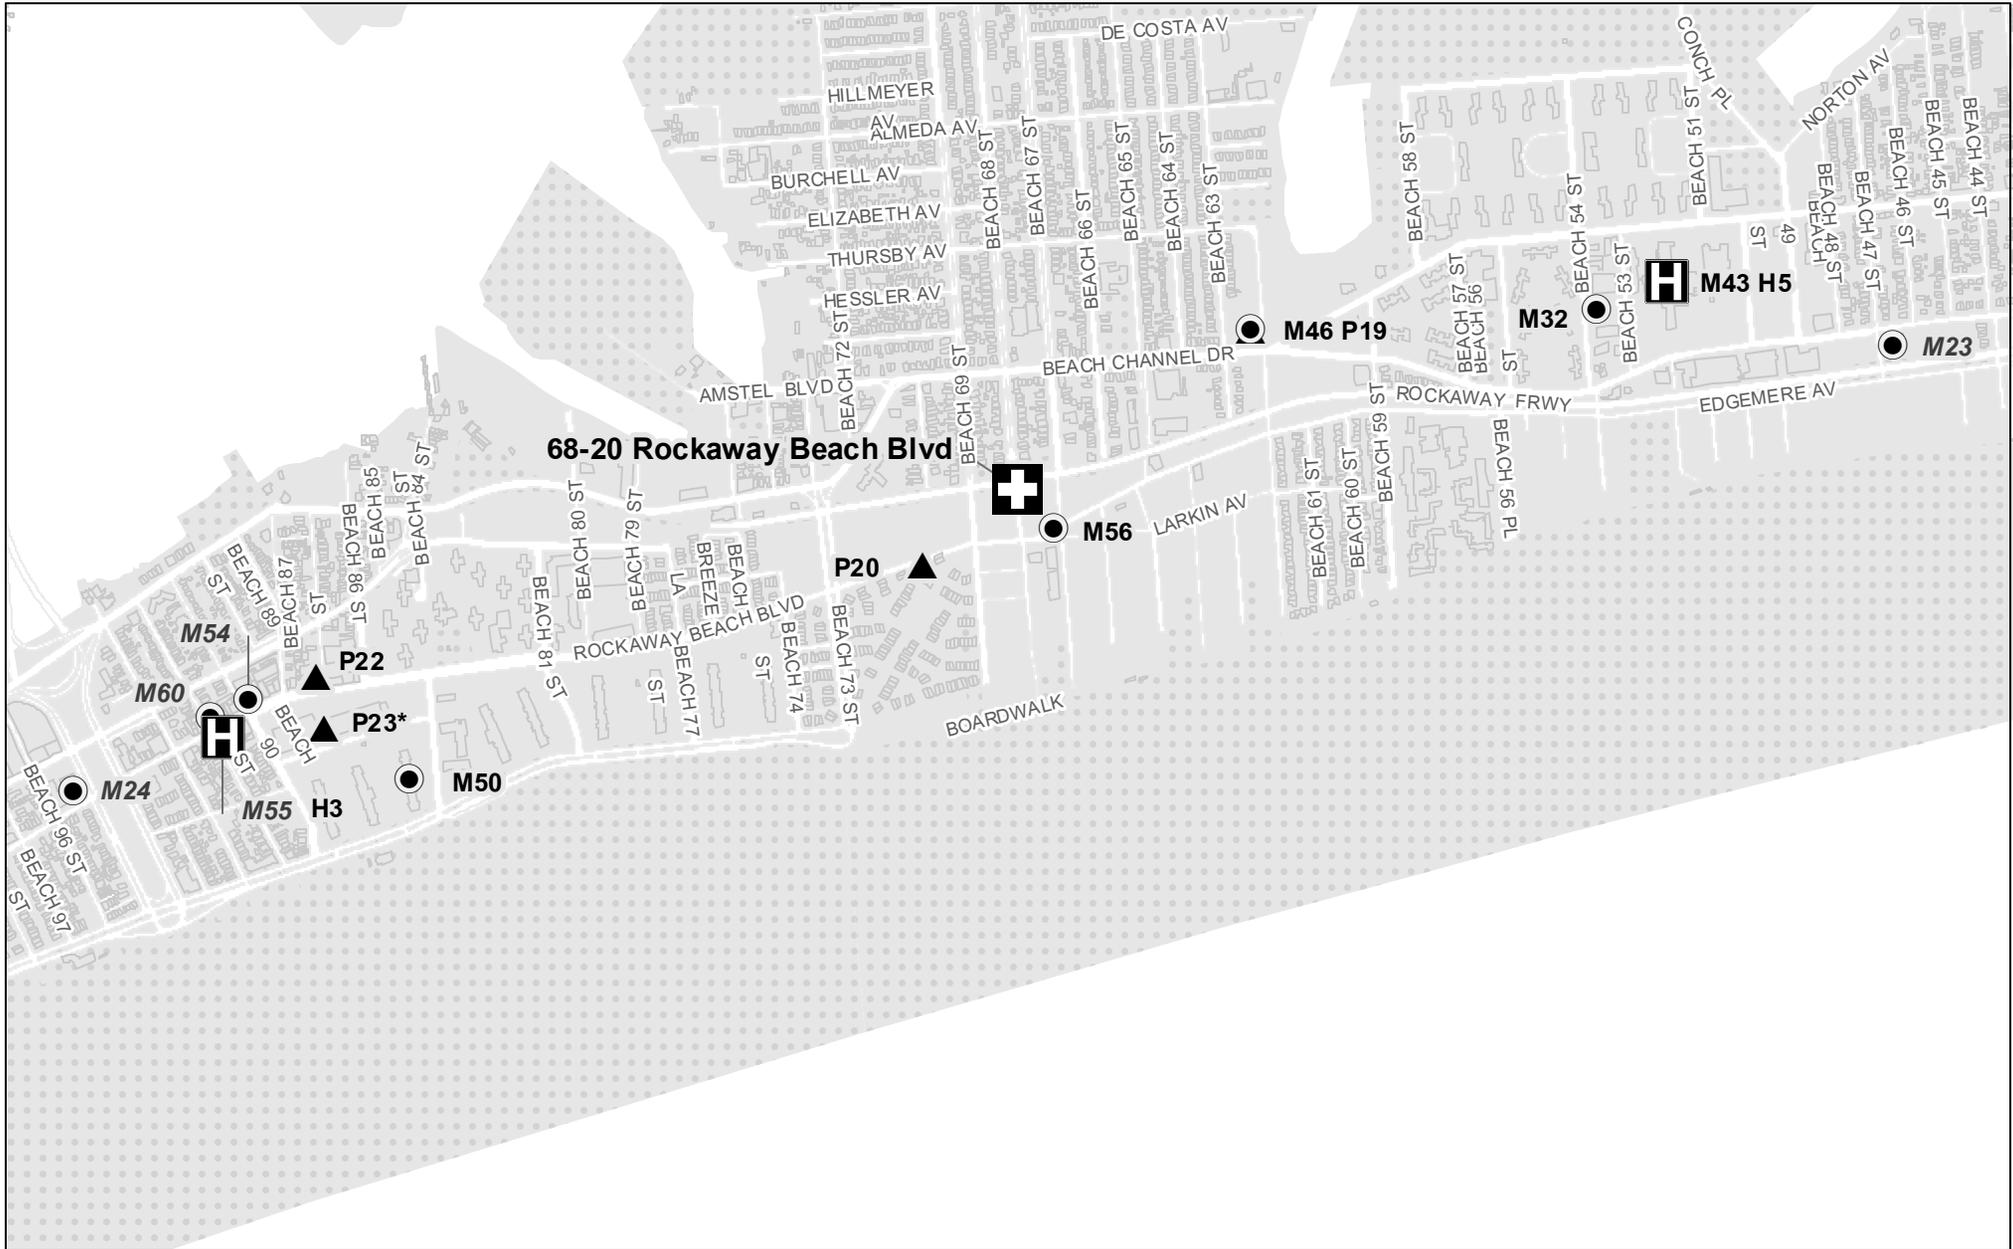

For More Information

- Call 311 or visit nyc.gov/311 for:
 - Restoration and Warming Centers in your area
 - Information on health insurance
- For information on how to clean your home safely, visit nyc.gov/health.
- For a flu vaccination clinic near you, call 311 or visit nyc.gov/flu.
